

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

P R E F A C E .

THIS volume, written to commemorate the centenary of Moulton Bells, is arranged on the following plan :

Part I. deals with the history from earliest times of 'Moulton Church and its Bells;' and an appendix is added which contains much interesting information concerning the parish and its associations.

Part II. records the church bells of Northamptonshire parishes as known to exist in 1552, 1700, and at the present time. Extracts also are given from the inventories of the Tudor period.

Part III. forms a 'Comprehensive Bibliography on Bells,' and includes: (1) The 'Subject-Catalogue' (with press marks) of the Bodleian Library; (2) Foreign Works, 1416, et seq.; (3) English Writers since 1668; (4) a Collection of Pamphlets and Miscellaneous Works; and (5) References to Periodical Literature, wherein matters about bells have been treated since 1730. These references are indexed under the heads 'Signed Articles,' 'General Matters,' 'Special Matters,' and 'Topographical.'

The second section of this work is based on the volume of 'Northamptonshire Church Bells,' published in 1878, by the late Thomas North, F.S.A. ; whilst the works of the late Rev. T. Ellacombe, F.S.A., have been freely consulted in preparing the Bibliography in Part III.

I wish to tender my grateful acknowledgments to many kind friends for their valuable assistance and advice. In correcting and revising the proof-sheets, the aid of Mr. Christopher A. Markham, F.S.A., has been most generous and untiring. My thanks also are due to the Rev. Charles D. P. Davies, M.A., of East Marden Rectory, Chichester, editor of the 'Campanological Section' of Church Bells, for kindly revising a considerable portion of the manuscript, and rendering other valuable assistance; to the Rev. Alexander Mackintosh, M.A., of Coleford, Sandown, Isle of Wight (Vicar of Moulton from 1888 to 1892), for much practical help and encouragement; the Rev. R. C. Faithfull, M.A., Curate-in-charge 1886 to 1888; Mr. John Taylor, editor of Northamptonshire Notes and Queries; Mr. T. J. George, F.G.S., Librarian of the Northampton Free Library; the staff of the Bodleian Library; and the bell-ringers of Moulton Church.

I would take this opportunity of expressing my many and great obligations for the courtesy shown me by Sir John Stainer, and the personal assistance freely rendered by E. W. Byron Nicholson, Esq., M.A., Librarian of the Bodleian Library, Oxford.

CHAPTER I.

MOULTON, VILLAGE AND PARISH.

Situation — Derivation — Forests — The Coritani — Druids — Roman Roads — Saxon Manor — Norman Castle — Waltheof, 1065 to 1076 — Countess Judith — Lords of the Manor — Domesday Accounts — Population, 1701 to 1891 — Moulton Park : Its Associations, References in 1086, 1201, 1531 ; population, 1841-1891 — Thorpeland : Assassination of Sir William Tresham, 1451 ; acquired by Sir William Wilmer, 1644 — Moulton Grange : Pytchley Hunt — Late Mr. and Mrs. Nethercote — Moulton Grounds : Castle of the Fitz-Johns — Moulton Chapels : Carey's House — Baptist Chapel — Memorial Tablet — Succession of Baptist Ministers.

A DREAMY old township is Moulton, full of 'old-world memories.' It is situated within four miles of Northampton, midway between the main road to Market Harborough and the North, and the main road to Kettering and Stamford. Much uncertainty exists as to the derivation of the name. Baker, the historian, thinks Moulton may have received its name from the British Mul, a stream, or perhaps from Mola, a mill ; but others hold that it was the Mele-ton, or 'embanked and protected enclosure' of British chiefs, long before the arrival of the Roman legions.

Before the birth of Christ large forests covered the land. As time passed these were partially cleared and rendered fit for human habitation. In the great central forest, which extended over the whole of Northamptonshire, savage tribes made their conquests, until overcome and exterminated by more powerful foes. The Coritani were among the first to acquire undisputed possession of the land in the east of this forest, and, becoming superior in arms and in numbers, pushed their way westward for a considerable distance; in this manner was the district around Moulton acquired.

From Brixworth the Romans made a road through Moulton and thence to Holcot.* At Moulton this 'Way' passed through the ancient 'Grove,'† where Druids had previously set up their temple and sacrificed to their gods. But civilization threw down the rude altars and erected a Christian church near the spot.

The manor in Saxon times was of large extent, with vast ponds surrounding the manor-house; here, at the time of the Norman Conquest, Ailricus the Thegn resided. William I., however, dispossessed him, and gave his inheritance to the Countess Judith, his own half-sister. Waltheof, son of Siward the Dane, Earl of Northumbria, after resisting the Conqueror for a long time, was captured in January, 1070, near the mouth of the Tees. On submitting to the King's mercy, not only was he pardoned and reinstated in his earldoms of Northamptonshire and Huntingdon, but the hand of the Countess Judith was given him in marriage. Alas! Judith proved false, betrayed her husband, and he was executed at Winchester, May 31, 1076.

Moulton is thus recorded in Domesday Book :

(i.) IN MALESLEA HUND.—
Rex tenet Torp. . . . Huic
Manerio pertinet Multone. Ibi est i. hida. et dimidia. et i. bovata terræ.

(i.) IN MALESLEA HUNDRED.
—The King holds Kingsthorp. . . .
To this manor pertains Multone.
There is 1 hide and a half and 1 bovine of land.

* Mr. C. A. Markham's opinion on this point is interesting. 'My idea,' he says, 'is that their road was from the high road by Boughton House, then to Old Boughton Church and straight into Moulton. This would make a direct road, with one bend, leading straight to Moulton Church.'

† Completely destroyed by a gale, Sunday, March 24, 1895.

(ii.) IN SPEREHOU HD.—Idem Willelmus tenet de Roberto ii. hidas et unam virgatam terræ et dimidiam, in Moltone. Terra est v. carucarum. In dominio sunt iii. carucæ cum i. servo. et vii. villani et iii. bordarii habent ii. carucas. Ibi molinus de viii. denariis. Valuit xx. solidos. Modo l. solidos. Thori tenuit.

(iii.) IN WIMARESLEA HUNDREDO ET DIMIDIO.—Idem tenet de Comitissa iii hidas et unam virgatam terræ in Multone. Terra est vi. carucarum et dimidæ. In dominio est una. et xii. villani cum iii. bordariis habent v. carucas. et dimidiam. Valuit et valet xl. solidos. Ailricus libere tenuit tempore Regis Edwardo.

(ii.) IN SPELHO HUND.—The same William holds of Robert [de Buci] 2 hides and 1 virgate and a half of land in Moltone. There is land for 5 ploughs. In demesne there are 3 ploughs, with 1 serf; and 7 villeins and 4 bordars have 2 ploughs. There is a mill rendering 8 pence. It is worth 20s., now [it is worth] 50s. Thori held [it].

(iii.) IN WIMARESLEA HUND. & HALF.—The same [Grimbald] holds of the Countess [Judith] 3 hides and 1 virgate of land in Multone. There is land for 6 ploughs and a half. In demesne there is 1 plough; and 12 villeins, with 4 bordars, have 5 ploughs and a half. It was and is worth 40s. Ailric held [it] freely in King Edward's time.

Moulton parish, which consists of some 3,000 acres in the Hundred of Spelhoe, is situated at an elevation of from 300 to 450 feet above Liverpool mean water-mark; consequently, the place attracted many visitors and invalids in times past on account of its healthy and pleasant situation. Its 'chalybeate waters,' moreover, had for several centuries been procured by patients, and large quantities are said to have been sent to various parts of the kingdom annually. The population of the village in recent years has decreased, mainly owing to agricultural depression. The figures, since the sixteenth century, are as follows:

Years.	Popula- tion.	Years.	Popula- tion.	Years.	Popula- tion.	Years.	Popula- tion.
1701	450	1811	928	1841	1,368	1871	1,692
1791	670*	1821	1,200*	1851	1,524	1881	1,483
1801	843	1831	1,334	1861	1,848	1891	1,382

* Estimated.

MOULTON PARK, comprising about 450 acres, now forms a separate parish. It was formerly extra-parochial, and for centuries existed as a feudal appendage to Northampton Castle. Occasionally it was referred to as 'the King's Park at Northampton,' as, for instance, in this extract from the Chancellor's Roll, 3rd John (1201): 'In the purchase of hay for feeding the beasts in the Park at Northampton, thirty-seven shillings.' In Domesday Book Moulton Park is twice recorded:

(i.) IN STOTFALD HUND.—
Biscop tenet de Comitissa dimidium hidam in Muletone. Terra est i. carucæ. Ipsa ibi est cum ii. villanis et ii. bordariis. Valet x. solidos.

(ii.) IN MALESLEA HUND.—
Idem tenet unam virgatam terræ in Muletone. Ibi i. sochmannus habet dimidium carucam. et reddit xxxiii. denarios.

(i.) Biscop holds of the Countess half a hide in Moulton Park. There is land for 1 plough. That is there with 2 villeins and 2 bordars. It is worth 10s.

(ii.) The same [Hugh] holds one virgate of land in Moulton Park. There 1 sochman has half a plough, and renders 33 pence.

Certain villages were responsible for the murage of the park. Culworth accounts, for instance, have this entry in 1531: 'Item paid to Moulton Park 4d.' Henry VIII. in the same year commanded 'the officers of our forest of Sawcey, and of our park at Moulton' to deliver 'such and as many oaks, convertable for posts and rayles, with the lops, tops, and bark of the same, sufficient for enlarging the park at Hartwell, and making a new lodge there.'

Moulton Park had a population in 1841 of 18; in 1861, 8; 1871, 11; 1881, 45; and at the last census, 42.

THORPELANDS is an ancient enclosure of about 200 acres, in Moulton parish. It came into possession of the Wilmers, baronets, prior to 1644. The place is memorable for the assassination of Sir William Tresham in 1451.* Sir William was returning home to Sywell, when, on stopping to say his Matins, one Symon Norwich suddenly surprised him, and cruelly thrust him through with a spear. 'His servants coming up presently, found him in this deplorable state, and for the better carrying of him back to Northampton; they cut off each end of the spear that stuck out at his back and front; but when they reached the town, and pulled out the rest of the truncheon, the patient died.'

* Northampton N. and Q., iii., p. 4.

MOULTON GRANGE, in the north-west, is one of the best-known houses in the 'Pytchley Country.' Here the author of 'The Pytchley Hunt, Past and Present,' lived, and here, too, he, the late Henry Osmond Nethercote, died, 1886. Mrs. Nethercote, amid much sorrow, was laid to rest in the churchyard in May, 1890. The deeds of both will be long cherished.

MOULTON GROUNDS, just outside the village, along the Pitsford road, is most prettily situated, and occupies the site where once stood a castle of the Fitz-Johns. In Norman times all three—castle, church, and manor-house—were within bowshot, thus affording excellent protection to the inhabitants.

Besides the ancient church, there are in the village chapels for Wesleyans, Baptists, and Primitive Methodists. The Baptist chapel has peculiar interest, for it is believed to have been one of the earliest founded in Northamptonshire, on a site, tradition says, which was given by one of Cromwell's troopers. In a house near the chapel the renowned William Carey lived, making shoes and keeping school the while. This remarkable man was born at Paulersperry, near Towcester, August 17, 1761, and in 1786 was appointed pastor of the little village chapel at Moulton. In 1793 he founded the Missionary Society. Carey was a great botanist, and his botanical gardens at Serampore are said to have contained 3,000 species of plants. A memorial tablet on the north wall of the chapel at Moulton bears this inscription:

'This Tablet was erected in memory of the Illustrious WM. CAREY, D.D., who was the honoured founder of this place of worship, and who for four years was the devoted pastor of this church—He afterwards became the evangelist of India, Professor of Sanscrit in the College of Fort William, and the Father of Modern Missions—He died at Serampore, June 9th, 1834. Aged 72 years.'

The story of William Carey is well told by Marianne Farningham in a poem, 'The Shoemaker Missionary,' in which she says :

'So he took
The little village church they offered him,
And when the stipend, ten or fifteen pounds,
Proved all too meagre, made the village shoes,
And mended them ; and taught the village boys,
Making a globe of leather for his school,
And giving lessons in geography—
Chiefly of India. . . .

But the Moulton fields
Were his prayer-places, and the silent trees
Looked down the while he made his high resolves ;
And the calm stars smiled with approving light,
And now and then the wakeful nightingale
Might hear another plaintive lay than hers
Break through the stillness, and, "O Lord, how long?"
Come from the lips of Carey.'

EARLY in the seventh century, a little wooden church, dedicated to St. Peter, was erected at Moulton. The situation, in many ways pleasant, was doubtless chosen for the purpose of defence. It was perched on the summit of a hill 340 feet above the sea, at the foot of which two streams met. On the west the hill descended abruptly, and below this were clustered the rude huts of the people. A mere track constituted the street, giving access to the tower in times of danger. Arrows would then fly fast from the narrow loopholes, while the thane in his moated castle would hasten to defend himself from all attacks.

The Saxon church was eventually fired by the Danes, who, in the tenth century, devastated the locality with fire and sword. Another rose upon its ashes, only to meet a similar fate, under similar circumstances, in 1017. Shortly afterwards a third building was begun, a considerable portion of which still exists.

In the year 1084, Grimbald the Norman gave to St. Andrew's Priory, Northampton, 'the church and tythes of "Multon"'; subsequently, 'Robert Grimbald confirmed his father's grant of the church and seven virgates of land "in the same township," which were further confirmed by his successors,' and afterwards by William Mandeville, Earl of Essex, who died in 1220. The priory had other possessions in Moulton. Alexander de Multon made a grant of a virgate of land; and about 1133 King Henry I. presented 'two virgates and the tythes of a mill called "Canthesmilne."' At the close of the thirteenth century—it was during the vicariate of Robert de Botelbrigge, 1287-1313—a mandate was issued by Oliver Sutton, Bishop of Lincoln (in whose diocese Moulton then lay), commanding the inhabitants of Moulton to rebuild 'the Church, Tower, and Churchyard,' which were 'miserably in ruins'—the cause of this being the 'Barons' War,' thirty years before.

The Vicarage was endowed in 1209, under the direction of Bishop Wells. Nearly half a century later, 1254, it is recorded that the 'Rectory of Moulton' was 'rated at 12 marks with a pension of xiijs. ivd. out of the Vicarage, which was not then valued.' Passing forward to the 20th Edward I., when Pope Nicholas (1288-1292) ordered a new taxation of ecclesiastical property, we find that five monasteries were at this time interested in the parish:

'i. St. Andrew's Priory lands. In 1291 the temporal possessions of the priory here were rated at £2 1s. 4d. per annum in rents, and 4s. in land; and "in the ecclesiastical survey of 1535 (26 Hen. VIII.), at £2 14s. 6d. per annum, demised to Thomas Chipsey for a term of years."

'ii. Fineshade Priory had lands in "Multon" valued at £2 2s. per annum in 1291, and at £1 per annum in the ecclesiastical survey of 1535. "In 35 Hen. VIII. (1545), these lands and tenements were granted to John Bellew and Edward Bailes in fee, at 2s. rent per annum."

'iii. Ouston Abbey also had rents in "Multon," which, in the taxation of Pope Nicholas were valued at 5s. per annum.

MOULTON CHURCH IN THE FOURTEENTH CENTURY.

'iv. St. Frideswide's Priory, Oxford, had "5 virgates of land, granted and confirmed by King John, which were rated at 12s. rent per annum in the taxation of Pope Nicholas."

'v. St. Alban's Abbey had 3s. rent per annum in 1291.*

Bishop Sutton's mandate of 1298 was obeyed by Vicar Robert de Botelbrigge, who caused the tower and church to be rebuilt, adding at the same time a beautiful aisle on the south side. This was dedicated to St. Paul. Late in the fourteenth century, a south porch was added, the clerestory built, and the roofs lowered successively throughout. During the next century the present elegant bell-chamber was erected. It is, however, a matter of uncertainty as to the exact date when the spire was added.

Three years before the dissolution of St. Andrew's Monastery, in 1535 to be exact, a record shows that Moulton Vicarage was 'rated at xv^l, out of which was deducted iij^s for synodals and procurations, and xiiij^s iv^d for a yearly pension to the Prior and Convent of St. Andrew;' also at this time the 'Rectory' was let out by lease from the convent to 'Edward Watson and his assigns for xvj^l a year.' When Henry VIII.'s displeasure fell upon the monastery, in the year of grace 1538, the Prior was presented to the living of Moulton, 'as a reward for his submissive acquiescence to the King's Commissioners.' His institution took place on July 31, 1540, amid public rejoicings; but his residence here was of short duration. Peterborough was raised to the dignity of a see in 1541, and Abree became its Dean.—A curious presentment was made to Bishop Scambler in 1578, stating that 'Joane Tymms is a scolde, & soweth discorde among neighbors!'

Among subsequent vicars was one, Fleshware by name, twice presented to the living—on the first occasion by 'John Freeman, of Great Billing, Esq.,' on January 14, 1607, and on the next by 'John Smith, of Marston St. Lawrence, Gent., by a grant from Sir Francis Freeman, of Lothbury Bucks, and instituted 11th June same year.' He enjoyed the unenviable distinction of being Vicar for almost a quarter of a century, during the whole of which time he resided elsewhere! Later, February 22, 1639-40, the famous divine, Edward Bagshaw, was inducted; but very shortly afterwards the Commissioners assembled at Northampton summarily ejected him, and put into his office two intruders. Bagshaw, however, outlived both, and in 1660 was restored by Charles II. He died at the time of the Revolution of 1688, half a century after his preferment.

It is needless to dwell upon the events which followed, for they tell of little else than oft-repeated restorations. Exactly 800 years after the time of Grimbald the Norman the Moulton Church Restoration Committee met at the Vicarage to consider seriously what steps should be taken to preserve the edifice from utter ruin. The result of that meeting was entered by the late Henry Osmond Nethercote in the minute-book, which states that on November 3, 1884, the committee resolved 'that the roofs of the nave and two aisles, and the parapets of the tower, be thoroughly restored, and the northern arcade made safe; also, if funds will permit, to open out and repair the western arch; all at a sum not exceeding £1,200.' Yet, before the restoration was effected the sum expended reached, not £1,200, but £3,500; and on that glorious June 15, 1886, when the late Archbishop Magee re-opened the church, in the presence of a large concourse of people (among whom were nearly a hundred clergy), white-robed choristers, for the first time since the Reformation, led the long procession, singing:

'Lift the strain of high thanksgiving!
Tread with songs the hallowed way!
Praise our fathers' God for mercies
New to us their sons to-day:
Here they built for Him a dwelling,
Served him here in ages past,
Fix'd it for His sure possession,
Holy ground, while time shall last.'

The organist on this memorable occasion was one whom a brother may be pardoned in mentioning—Mr. E. B. Wilmer Madge, the present organist of St. Aldate's, Oxford.

THE TOWER AND ITS CONTENTS: PRE-REFORMATION HISTORY.

Bells, 680 A.D.—Substitutes in Early Church—Erection of Tower—Upper Belfry, Fifteenth Century—Decorated Bell-chamber—Spire added—New Bells, 1450 to 1540—Traditions—St. Andrew's Monastery Bells—Inventory of Priory, 1538.

AT what period a bell was first introduced into the church at Moulton must for ever remain a matter of uncertainty. Bells were practically unknown in England before 680 A.D., and even then their use was restricted to the larger monasteries. The early church, therefore, it may safely be concluded, had not in its possession a bell of any kind. It was usual at that period to call the Christians to prayer in two ways—by ‘runners,’ and by striking together pieces of ‘sacred boards.’ For perhaps three centuries the latter method was in vogue. The second building doubtless had a small bell in its turret at some early period, in addition to the usual ‘lytel hande bell.’ During the eleventh century there was at least one bell, and there is every reason to believe that another—probably the gift of the manorial lord—was added shortly afterwards. In the thirteenth century the present tower was commenced and contained, in all probability, the first ring of bells on completion.

The tower has considerable elegance. It is lofty and appearance, and, as is the case with Decorated anted parapet has at the angles the remains of originally were four beautiful pinnacles—now irrely lost. The face of the tower is divided into four height—one of the finest in Northamptonshire. The four stages consist of a 'ringing chamber' (circa 1250), 30 feet high; a 'clock chamber'; the 'original belfry chamber,' in the Decorated style; and the 'new belfry chamber' (Perpendicular), erected about 1422.

* See Parker's 'A B C of Gothic Architecture,' in which this tower is regarded as a typical one.

The tower was completed at an uncertain date. The work, however, progressed under Thomas de Ryhall (1263-1280), Ralph de Stangoot (1280-1287), and Robert de Botelbrigge (1287-1313)—priests and vicars of Moulton. Upon its completion several new bells, doubtless, made their appearance: the original belfry still contains evidence as to their existence, as also to the position of the framework supporting them. Two of the Decorated windows (those on the west and east) were partially built up, and remain so to this day. Clearly, the bells were hung at a height less than 40 feet above the surface of the ground.

In the early years of the fifteenth century, the elegant upper belfry was erected, the style being Perpendicular, of a more praiseworthy type than that attempted in the windows of the south aisle. Into this beautiful chamber were the bells removed from their former position in the Decorated belfry; and about the same time a spire was added, making the total height about 110 feet.* The ringing chamber was immediately beneath the clock-room; but in 1884 it was removed, the tower again thrown open, and ringing from the ground substituted.

Between 1450 and 1540 two new bells were added to the four already existing in the tower, thus making a total ring of six. It is, however, a disputed point whence they came, or at what date they were hung within the new belfry. A tradition is recorded that they were received from St. Andrew's Monastery, but this is highly improbable. At the time of its dissolution the priory possessed nine bells, which were sold to the merchants of Northampton for the sum of £100. The following extracts from the inventory of 1538 are interesting:

* Writing on January 9, 1895, on behalf of the Director-General of the Ordnance Survey, Lieutenant-Colonel Johnston, R.E., informed the Author that the present height of the tower above the surface of the ground is 79 feet 3 inches, i.e., 420 feet above the sea.

MANY and varied were the purposes for which Commissioners were appointed during Edward VI.'s reign—one for Church plate* and other valuables; another to search houses for Church property; a third 'to examine into the rents of the Crown estates, and to sell what remained of the chantry lands'; and, in addition to these, a special Commission was organized to collect bells, ornaments, and vestments.

On visiting Moulton in the year 1552, the Commissioners reported that there were in the tower six bells: a sanctus, four other bells, and a 'Mote-bell.' Some time previously, as appears from the inventory compiled in that year, 'the townspeople of Moulton, in this county, purchased and set apart a special bell as a Mote-bell, which was to belong to the parishioners apart from the church. In the Inventory of Church Goods then belonging to that parish this bell is described as a "great bell" then hanging by itself in the bell-chamber, to be used as a clock-bell, and it was to be "ronge whan any casualtyes shall chaunce and for y^e gatheryng togyther y^e Inhabytants of y^e sayd towne to y^e Courte & other theyr necessaryes." *

* The church plate at present consists of an elegant silver cup, 1607; a silver paten, c. 1685; and a silver bread-holder inscribed, 'The Gift of Mrs. Sarah Page to the Parish Church of Moulton, 1735.' All are well described in Mr. C. A. Markham's latest work—a volume of sterling worth, of engrossing interest—'The Church Plate of Northamptonshire,' 1894.

The period which followed was indeed a troubled one. Owing to the attitude of Henry VIII., Sir Thomas Farre (instituted March 13, 1542), and William Coxe (October 26, 1546)—both adhering to the Catholic religion—resigned the living. Christopher Browne (November 29, 1557), George Doxe (March 29, 1565), and William Dale (February 1, 1597) were successively inducted, but much bitterness fell to their lot.

Meanwhile the Puritans were becoming more powerful, and consequently more malicious, daily. About 1645 the spire was removed, and the beautiful pinnacles destroyed; this was done, tradition would have us believe, by Cromwell's soldiers, who stripped off the lead with which it was covered, and turned it to good account—in other words, bullets for Naseby! Tradition, however, is oft 'a lying jade,' and she has not been idle among the ruins of Boughton Parish Church—as usual, 'knocked down by Cromwell.' But in this case it is untrue, for the villagers, being unable to walk with comfort the three-quarters of a mile separating them from the church, allowed it to fall into decay at the beginning of the sixteenth century, and built for themselves a chapel in their midst! Nevertheless Cromwell and his generals were in the locality both before and after the battle of Naseby, and from here he marched an army of 15,000 men into Worcestershire.

* North's 'Bells of Northamptonshire,' 1878, p. 339.

In the church itself the stained glass disappeared, and the chancel window was utterly destroyed. The sanctus-bell had previously been disposed of in some manner, and the rest of the peal damaged to some extent. In 1664 two new bells were placed in the tower; but these may have been two former bells having new inscriptions and dates, by reason of some unrecorded accident. Three bells, however, remain to be accounted for—whether broken, or sold, is not known.

Later, about 1700, there were five bells in the tower: the dates and inscriptions of the treble and second bells, however, are matters of uncertainty. The tenor had an interesting inscription in old Saxon capitals, which read as follows:

SANCTE CONFESSOR
CRISTI BENEDICITE ORA
PRO NOBIS DEVM.

The date of this bell is known to have been about 1230.* Other particulars concerning this early 'ring' may thus be stated:

THE five bells referred to in the last chapter were taken, in the year 1795, to Mr. Edward Arnold's foundry, Leicester, to be recast into a 'ring of six.' The entire weight amounted to 4 tons, considerably more than is shown by the Churchwardens' account book, in which an entry occurs for carriage at the rate of 8d. per cwt. Unfortunately, there are two items which appear to clash with each other. Here is the first :

No satisfactory explanation of the double charge has hitherto been accepted, and the items must, therefore, be doubtfully dismissed.

losing, too, what had so long shared their joys and griefs, their hopes and fears, and given strength and encouragement to them when in despair? Ay, what had guided them from their youth, had daily aroused them from sleep, proclaiming the hour for work, the time for rest, and the Benediction of the Church. How oft, indeed, had they heard 'the solemn sound of the passing-bell, calling upon all to offer a prayer for the departing soul of a neighbour—the death knell telling that all is over, that life's race is done—the funeral chime bringing calm in the midst of the heart's grief—the joyful peal announcing a birth, baptism, or marriage.' They remembered, and were sad. But none felt it as did the ringers themselves: the parting to them seemed strange and unaccountable—affecting, as ringers alone know.

Then the ringing ceased; and, for the last time, the Curfew tolled

'The knell of parting day.'

As the far bell of vesper makes him start,
Seeming to weep the dying day's decay.'

ON THE ROAD: THE JOURNEY HOME.

Through Northamptonshire—Market Harborough reached—Leicestershire Route—At the Foundry—Contemporary Records—The Thirteenth-Century Tenor Bell, Inscription and Size—Analytical Tables of Route—The Welcome Home—Baptismal Ceremony—Particulars of the New Peal.

It was early on the morning of Wednesday, July 21, 1795, when the bells set out on their travels northward to Leicester, a distance by road of thirty-one miles. During the day they crossed many parishes—Boughton, Pitsford, Brixworth, Hanging Houghton, Lamport, Maidwell, Kellmarsh, Great Oxendon, and Little Bowden—and in the evening crossed the Welland, and drew up at the ancient inn of Harborough for the night. On the following day the journey was resumed, passing through Lubenham, Foxton, Smeeton Westerby, Kibworth Beauchamp, Kibworth Harcourt, Burton Overy, Great Glen, Oadby, and Knighton, until at length the bells arrived at the East Gate of the pleasant little town of Leicester, and proceeded to the bell foundry of Mr. Edward Arnold. Some particulars as to the route taken may be of interest :

Three months elapsed, during which time the art of the bell-founder was skilfully employed in recasting the five old bells into a new peal of six—that Arnold was successful, all, who have since heard the fine peal, will readily admit. Among the visitors to the foundry was one of eminent authority in matters campanological. ‘I may just observe,’ wrote Dr. Throsby in 1795, ‘that this year, a gentleman of considerable fortune came to Leicester purposely to see an old bell brought [from Moulton] to Mr. Arnold, bell-founder, to be recast. On it was the head of Henry III. [1216-1272], King of England at the time of Pope Benedict. Round the crown this:

only one of the same age that he knows of in England.* Some account of the history of this remarkable bell will be given in a later chapter, however.†

On October 23, 1795, Friday, the return journey was commenced, the bells being conveyed by a long team of gray horses. Some idea as to the surface of the ground traversed on this occasion may be conveyed by the following table :

County.	Miles.	Ascents. ft.	Descents. ft.	Greatest Rise.	Greatest Fall.	Highest Altitude.	INCLINES ASCENDED.

	31	1,778	1,632				61	49	9	7	1

As on the first occasion, so now, a halt was made at Market Harborough; and next day the journey came to an end. Just outside the village, along the Pitsford Road, the horses were brought to a standstill, whilst busy hands bedecked the waggons with boughs of evergreen, and the horses with ribbons. On again went the procession, the villagers singing and laughing with merry glee; up the hill came the ponderous load—some pushing, others running, skipping, jumping: what a goodly company! Soon they stopped, for the little inn|| was reached. Then commenced the profane ‘christening.’ In one of the bells, which had previously been inverted, mine host mixed ‘a motley compound of beer, rum, etc.,’ which was

Of course the bell-founder was busy on this occasion, being provided with 'a more delicate mixture' in the treble with which to supply the distinguished persons in the company.* After the ceremony the bells were conveyed to the church and locked up for the night.

THE NEW PEAL, AND ITS SUBSEQUENT HISTORY.

Inscriptions on Treble and Tenor—Other Churches with same Mottoes—The Rev. William Stanton, M.A., 1738 to 1768—Memorial Tablet to the Stanton Family—Alterations and Restorations, 1816, 1818, 1847, 1848, 1849, 1853, 1855, 1878, 1880, 1883, 1884 to 1886—Vestry Regulations—The Church Clock and its Caretakers—The Chimers—Restoration of Tower and Bells, 1884—An Interesting Discovery—Mr. Arnold's bill for the bells.

WITH two exceptions, the inscriptions on the bells of Moulton are commonplace. The mottoes on the treble and tenor, however, are very suitable, and it is interesting to note the extent to which they have been adopted elsewhere.

The treble bears the following legend around its shoulders :

OMNIA FIAINT AD GLORIAM DEI.

(Let all be done to the glory of God.)

This inscription was first used in Northamptonshire, among existing bells, in the year 1618, on the tenor of Helpstone Church ; and last used, in 1795, at Moulton. The same motto occurs at the following places :

At Moulton the tenor has this inscription :

The couplet is inscribed also at Magdalen College, Oxford (1829), and at Sleaford (1796). In Northamptonshire this inscription appears to have been first used on the tenor of Wellingborough Parish Church (1639), and in the year following was added at Norton. Wollaston (1806) was the last addition made to the county. There are thirteen churches in Northamptonshire whose tenors have similar mottoes, varying slightly in form :

Nor will it be out of place to refer to the Vicar whose name is immortalized by his deeds. The Rev. William Stanton was the son of a former Vicar of the same name, who held the living from 1738 to 1762. He was educated at Lincoln College, Oxford, and shortly after the death of his father was instituted at Moulton. He continued Vicar until 1830, being spoken of as 'the oldest incumbent in the county.' An interesting item appears in the Account Book of this period :—

'1831. Aug. 13. Paid Miss Dickens as per Bill for 120 Bows for the Sunday School Children for Mr. Wm. Stanton's funeral 0 8 0'

In the south chantry is a large inscribed slab, and also a mural tablet, which has a long inscription :

'Sacred to the memory of SARAH,
Daughter of the Reverend and Venerable JOHN CONANT, D.D., Rector of Exeter College, Oxford, Regius Professor of Divinity in that University, Archdeacon of Norwich, Prebendary of Worcester, and Vicar of

'Also of WILLIAM their Son, Scholar of Worcester College, Oxford.
Who died June 23rd, 1789. Aged 18.

'Also of GEORGE STAVELEY, who died in his infancy.'

Between 1795 and 1850 a few alterations and repairs were carried out. In 1818 this entry occurs :

'Sep. 1. Paid man for repairing the bells, 9
Days and Half at 6/6 per Day £3 1 9'

Again, in 1847, it was resolved at the Easter vestry 'that Mr. Pearson, of Northampton, be requested to examine the frames and brasses of the Bells, and that the Churchwardens be empowered to put them into good and substantial repair, after hearing his report.' The vestry also drew up regulations in 1848 and 1853 for the proper use and observance of the 'daily bells.' On November 9, 1849, an agreement was signed 'to give John Luck £3 10s. to repair the Church Clock ; that he should put it in thorough repair, and unless it is done to the satisfaction of the parish he is not to receive the money ; to have new weights at the further expense of the parish ;
also that the said John Luck be paid 7/6 per year to keep the clock in repair in future.* The accounts showed that John Luck drew his instalments with commendable regularity ! And yet again, April 13, 1855, did the vestry decide that 'the churchwardens be requested to ask for subscriptions for a new clock.' But the clock has not yet arrived. Indeed, the interest taken in the poor old church 'timekeeper' is most pathetic! With regard to the ringers, the vestry decided on April 25, 1878, to pay them 'the sum of £2, and Mr. Britten the sum of £1 for attending to the Clock.' But the ringers murmured! Under April 5, 1880, is this entry: 'The chimers gave notice that they wished for an increase in their wages. Proposed . . . that the churchwardens see the chimers and make arrangements with them in regard to their application.'

The church tower was at this time in a deplorable state, and the bells, too, hung upon beams which threatened daily to give way. On November 15, 1883, a special vestry was held 'pursuant to notice duly given, to take into consideration the best means of raising funds to thoroughly repair the Church Bells, and appoint a Committee for that purpose. . . . Resolved: That the Bells be temporarily repaired, and put into order for the Christmas ringing.' The work was shortly afterwards carried out in a successful manner by Messrs. Taylor and Co., Loughborough. In reply to some questions, the firm courteously informed the Author that when the contract was executed 'the bells did not leave Moulton'; also, that 'entirely new framework and fittings were supplied for the six bells at a cost of £138 10s. in March, 1884. We do not know the exact weights of the bells,' they added. 'The treble is 2' 8½" in diameter, and the tenor is 3' 9", and probably weighs about 16 cwt.* A

* Communicated by Messrs. Taylor and Co., bell-founders Loughborough, Leicester, January 8, 1895. A copy of Arnold's bill was discovered on April 24, 1895. The account is dated Oct. 30th, 1795, and reads thus: 'To a new Peel of Six Bells, weight 63 cwt. 2 qrs. 2 lb.; Recd. 5 old Bells, wt. 79 cwt. 0 : 6. To recasting 63 cwt. 2 : 2, at 30s. per cwt., £95 : 5 : 6½; Hanging Materials for the Six Bells, £42; Repairing and altering the frame £15; Six New Clappers, wt. 136½ lbs. at 9d., £5 : 17 : 6½; total, £158 : 3 : 1¼.' Against this is 'Allowed old Metal wt. 15 cwt. 2 : 4. at 8d., £58. Due to Balance £100 : 3 : 1¼; To six new Stays, Sliders, Screws, Bolts, etc., £3 3s., Men fixing the Clock, Hammer and other repairs, £1 1s.; total, £104 : 7 : 1¼.'

'record' subsequently placed on the tower wall, near the font, commemorates the completion of this work : 'Moulton, Church of SS. Peter and Paul.—These bells were rehung by Messrs. John Taylor & Co., Loughborough, in 1884, at a cost of £138 10s.—Rev. O. R. Walker, Vicar; George Turner, Samuel Monk, Churchwardens; Robert York, Superintendent.'

An interesting discovery, which proved to be an ancient 'course' for four bells, was made during the restoration of the church in 1885-86. A small portion of this course, written on the woodwork of the ringing-chamber, was as below :

CHAPTER VIII.

LEGENDS THAT LINGER.

St. Andrews' Monastery Bells—Ruins of St. John Baptist Church, Boughton — Broughton Church mistaken — Cromwell's Mighty Deeds—Robbery in a Belfry—The Tenor Bell once more—Popes on the Scene, 1216 to 1272—Inventory of Bells at Boughton Parish Church—A 'Maiden' Bell at Moulton—Weston Favell Bells mistaken—Overstone and Sywell v. Moulton.

THE traditions relating to Moulton bells, though few in number, possess a certain amount of interest. The first relates that at the time of the dissolution of St. Andrew's Monastery, Northampton, two of its bells were transferred to Moulton Church.* There is certainly much to support the tradition, especially as the late Prior became Vicar in 1540; still, it is highly improbable, as shown in an earlier chapter.

It was in the sixteenth century, tradition would have us believe, that 'a party of Moulton people went secretly to the parish church of Boughton, stole a bell lying unhung in the tower, and brought it to their own parish.' Throsby, whose account of the ancient tenor bell is quoted elsewhere,† remarks of it: 'The history of this bell is this—that when Broughton Church, in Northamptonshire, was knocked down by Cromwell, the bell was taken to the church of Moulton, near Northampton; thence brought to Leicester in 1795, to be recast with the rest of the Church Bells.' Mr. North, quoting and criticising this note, adds: 'Now, as Boughton Church was not "knocked down by Cromwell," and is, moreover, a considerable distance from Moulton, whilst Boughton is near at hand, there is, I think, little doubt that the bell in question came—if it did not originally belong to Moulton—from the latter place. This opinion is supported by the fact that the ancient church of Boughton, being a considerable distance from the village, was deserted in the sixteenth century, and allowed to fall into decay. It had two bells, one of which was broken down by thieves in the night and afterwards sold by the parishioners, and the second not unlikely, under the circumstances, found its way to Moulton.'* Dr. Throsby, unfortunately, makes an error in his statement concerning the bell, viz.: 'On it was the head of Henry III., King of England, in the time of Pope Benedict,' for no such person upheld Papal supremacy 'during the reign of Henry III.' (1216-1272). The Popes during this period were:

* Bridges' 'Northamptonshire,' vol. i., p. 419.

† P. 36, ante.

1216. Honorius III.	1265-9. Clement IV.
1227. Gregory IX.	1271. Gregory IX.
1241. Celestinus IV.	1276-7. } Innocent V. Adrian V. John XIX., or XX., or XXI.
1243. Innocent IV.
1254. Alexander IV.
1261. Urban IV.

But with regard to the tradition of 'stealing a bell from Boughton,' Throsby was evidently well aware of its existence. The performance was surely not a creditable one, if true! In the inventory of 1552, Boughton bells are thus referred to:

'It' too bellē of the which bellē the one was brocken don by theffes on a nyght cloffen & broken & then yt was sold by the holle co'sent of the piche unto Goodmā Freyre of Ecton for the some of vii the whiche vii was spēte in the defendynge of the Warren. It' one sanct' bell.'

* North's 'Bells of Northamptonshire,' 1878, p. 340.

One other tradition remains to be added : A belief has long been held that the present fourth bell (a 'maiden') was originally in the possession of the good people of Weston Favell, some three miles away, but that it was recast in 1795 with the remainder of the peal. This tradition is without the faintest tinge of truth !

Although not a legend but a reality, it would be a misfortune not to refer here to an interesting belief in 'Voices of Bells.' Every Sunday at 10.30 a.m., it is possible to hear the bells of Sywell, Overstone, and Moulton chiming together harmoniously. Then, according to a popular opinion, occurs this little dialogue :

SYWELL asks : 'Who rings best ?'

OVERSTONE answers boldly : 'We do !'

But MOULTON cuts them short, exclaiming : 'No, you don't, for we do !!'

THE ‘Peculiar Uses and Customs’ of the bells of Moulton Church are unusually interesting; most of them will be mentioned in this chapter. ‘Chiming the bells’ is at all times indulged in, and the following may often be heard just before the commencement of the evening service, on Sundays:

It was customary, also, on Lady Day, to chime as below, but this has not been done for several years now:

V. 8 P.M.—THE CURFEW.—This ancient institution still survives at Moulton. It is rung precisely at eight o'clock, both in summer and winter. Curiously, from time immemorial the Curfew has never been rung either on Saturday or Sunday evenings! Under date Easter, 1847, the vestry book records the desire 'that the ringing of the Church Bell at eight o'clock in the evening should be discontinued, and that it should be rung every morning except Sunday at six o'clock.' In the following year this entry occurs: 'It was also ordered that the Curfew Bell should be rung as usual in times past, [and] that 10s. per annum additional should be allowed the Parish Clerk for so doing.'

PART II.—SUNDAY BELLS.

None of the uses hitherto named are employed on Sunday; instead, the following customs are kept up with more or less regularity:

VI. 7 A.M. EARLY MORNING BELL.—This is one of the most interesting customs extant. It announces for the benefit of mankind the fact that at Matins a sermon will be preached; and for this purpose the second bell is used.

VII. 8 A.M. SECOND MORNING BELL.—An hour later two bells, third and fourth, are chimed for about a quarter of an hour; but the significance of this custom is not known.

VIII. MATINS.—Chiming the bells for this service now commences at 10.15 a.m., being continued until 10.40 a.m. 'Ringing in' succeeds during the next five minutes, when the treble bell is usually used as 'Ting-tang.'

IX. The SERVICE-CONCLUDING BELL is another peculiar custom. Immediately the Benediction is pronounced, the second bell is rung as a notice to the villagers.

X. SERMON BELL, ii.—Should it be the intention of the Vicar to hold service in the afternoon, with sermon, the fact is proclaimed to the people two hours in advance by the ringing of the second and third bells at one o'clock.

XI. AFTERNOON SERVICE.—When held, the bells are chimed from 2.30 to 2.55 p.m., the 'ringing in' taking place during the next five minutes, as at Matins. It was formerly the custom to hold afternoon service every Sunday in the winter; but since 1885 this has not been done.

XII. SERMON BELL, iii.—At 4 p.m. it is the custom to chime the third and fourth bells for about fifteen minutes, in order to proclaim the tidings that a sermon will be preached at the evening service.

XIII. EVENSONG.—Chiming commences about 5.30 p.m., and lasts until 5.55, when the 'ringing in' again takes place. The bells, however, are just as frequently rung for this service.

PART III.—DEATH BELLS.

XIV. WINDING BELL.—This is the name given to the treble bell when rung immediately after the Noonday Bell; it proclaims that a funeral will take place in the afternoon of the particular day on which it is tolled.

XV. DEATH KNELL.—Having been acquainted of the person's decease, the clerk proceeds to inform parishioners by tolling the 'death bell' several minutes; after a time the bell is 'raised,' when the sex of the person is declared according to the formula:

'Thrice three tolls for a male,
And thrice two for a female.'

XVI. INFANT'S DEATH KNELL.—A distinction is made in the case of a child. Instead of using the tenor bell, the third is employed; but 'sex' is denoted in the usual way.

XVII. FUNERALS.—The tenor is tolled for fifteen or twenty minutes, and then 'raised' at the moment the funeral cortège is supposed to leave the house. This custom is peculiar to Moulton, and is often quoted by writers.

XVIII. DUMB PEALS are rung whenever a person of distinction dies. It has been customary also to pay the same tribute to the memory of a dead ringer. One of the most recent occasions was that at the death of Mr. John Dickens, who in 1810 rang with others a peal to celebrate the Jubilee of King George III. The present ringers brought him to the belfry with every care and kindness, in 1887, in order that, with assistance, he might likewise share the joys of Queen Victoria's Jubilee. He died at an age of nearly 100 years!

PART IV.—MISCELLANEOUS CUSTOMS.

XIX. CHURCH FESTIVALS are celebrated here right joyfully by merry peals throughout the day.

XX. LOYAL PEALS have been rung annually from time immemorial. The escape of King Charles on May 29 was formerly commemorated with much vigour by the villagers; for in addition to the clanging of bells, the tower was decorated with boughs of oak, and all observed high holiday. At present, peals are rung on May 24 and June 20—the birthday and coronation-day of our good Sovereign, Queen Victoria.

XXI. NEW YEAR'S EVE is observed in an interesting manner. At 11.30 p.m. the bells commence ringing a 'dumb peal,' and this is continued for half an hour; when midnight arrives twelve strokes are slowly tolled upon the Death Bell, and just as the last stroke is dying away, the whole peal suddenly breaks forth on the calm clear air.

XXII. VESTRY BELL, and XXIII. INDUCTION BELL.—Both are rung as occasion requires.

XXIV. The GLEANING BELL was rung at Moulton years ago, and several entries occur in the churchwardens' account-book for this purpose, from 1846 to 1852 :

1846.	July 31.	Paid Walton Pell for crying the
		Gleaning	6d.
1852.		Paid the Cryer to cry the gleaning	6d.

Among the customs formerly observed may be mentioned: Plough Monday, January 10; Execution of Charles I., January 30, 1648-49; St. George's Day, April 23; St. Andrew's, St. Paul's, and St. Stephen's Days; Soulmas and Lady Day; also the ringing of the Mote Bell; the Dole Meadow, Apprentice, Seed-sowing, Harvest and Gleaning Bells; and the Sacrament and Sacring Bells—but these are now, alas! the echoes of a forgotten past.

'And so 'twill be when I am gone,
The tuneful peal will still ring on ;
While other bards shall walk these dells,
And sing your praise, sweet Moulton bells !'

[In the course of an interesting and characteristic letter, the genial Oxford Professor of Music recently pointed out 'a very funny misprint' on the frontispiece of this work. 'It is there stated that the Bell is 6 feet 9 inches in diameter, instead of 9 FEET 6 INCHES! It would require a clever founder to get nearly 17 tons of metal into a bell having a diameter of 6 feet 9!']
